Manuel U. Vigil, who acted as interpreter for the local Democrats at their county convention, has just been nominated as district attorney for the counties of Bernalillo, Sandoval and McKinley. Mr. Vigil is one of the youngest attorneys now admitted to practice in the territory and whose record as a young man is as clean as snow. His election is practically assured and that he will make good is a foregone conclusion.

MCGILLIVRAY A STRONG CANDIDATE

The candidate for the office of treasurer and ex-officio collector of Torrance county on the Democratic ticket is one of the best known men in the county. Probably as many citizens of the county know Angus McGillivray as any one in the county, and know him to be a straightforward and honest man, who has conducted his business of sheep growing in this part of the territory during the past twenty years or more in the most business-like manner. He has no shady record to cover, and no unfair dealings to hide. He meets every voter with an open face and a glad hand. He has had in his employ during his residence in the county hundreds of men, and not a single one of them can be found to say aught against him. Every one of them have only words of praise for him. If elected to the office, as he probably will be, he will give the same close attention to the office that he has given his private business. The taxes will be collected, and there will be sufficient funds on hand to pay the county's bills without transferring from other funds, as has been the case under the preset regime. The list of delinquents will be published according to law and the delinquents will be compelled to make their payments, the rich as well as the poor and the corporations the same as the private individual. According to the statute the 1910 delinquent tax list should have been published in September, and is not ready for publication yet. The 1909 tax list which should have been published and the property sold a year ago, has only been published within the past few months. Consequently the taxpayers have not paid, because they were not compelled to pay, and the funds have not been in the treasury. With a business man in charge of the office, doing the work when it should legally be done, the money would be on hand to meet the county's obligations. A vote for McGillivray is a vote in favor of the taxpayers.

R. J. Lentz left yesterday noon for Albuquerque where he will join J. G. Paup and leave at once for Black Rock, in the western part of the territory. Mr. Paup has a contract with the government to drill several wells at the Indian School in the Zuni Reservation, and Bob will handle the pots and kettles and sling the dish-cloth.

E. Romero and the Howell Mercantile Company each shipped a car of beans to Albuquerque last night.

Wake Up

The Albuquerque Tribune is worrying over that "All-American" ticket in Torrance county. Don't worry, poor fellow. Better get a correspondent over here who will set you right and give you the news before it is a week old. Possibly on the night of November 7th the Tribune will learn that the Torrance County Democrats with the assistance of the Progressive Republicans of the county have been working for the best interests of the people regardless of any race issue or prejudice rather than in favor of the gang. Wake up, old boy!

Consistency?

A few short weeks ago, Miss Porter took charge of the Estancia Herald, and in the leading editorial in the first issue thereafter, she stated that she would not support any gang nor gang rule. Yesterday this week's issue of the Herald appeared under a date line of Wednesday, in which over half of the reading matter is plate form furnished by the Republican central committee, boosting the worst gang that ever fastened its fangs on a people. This is about as consistent as the president of the Epworth League carrying a saloon ad in her paper.

Is it a Joke?

A number of the gang papers are publishing what they are pleased to call "The Facts About Bursum," including in the article a purported copy of the records of the district court. As a joke this is a winner, but as to facts, it is worse than irony to mention the word. The taking of the matter into the courts under special legislation is too well remembered by the people of New Mexico, to make them believe that the coat of whitewash has remained intact until today. The job of whitewashing was pretty well done at the time, but arrangements should have been made to have the job repeated at least once a year to make it effective, for even a board fence to retain its color must be whitewashed every spring, and New Mexico has had some violent storms during the past few years, which have proven disastrous even to good jobs of whitewashing. Facts—hold our coat while we laugh!

Willard Notes

Mrs. Frank Jennings is on the sick list.

Mrs. Lula Lueras is in Belen visiting her mother.

What's the matter with Willard? The men who have not gone wild over politics, have gone hunting.

Messrs. and Mesdames Hitt and Pedrick went to El Paso to take in the celebration in honor of the new states.

Mr. Carr, of Albuquerque, is visiting Dr. Cheney the past few days, and looking over the valley with a view to locating.

Mrs. Emma Alter, of Winfield, Kansas, has come to spend the winter with her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Alter.

J. W. Jackson, of Childress, Texas, was in our town Wednesday and Thursday of last week, trying to buy three carloads of horses.

E. P. Davies, of Santa Fe, met the Republican Central Committee in Willard the 24th and went with them to Mountainair, where they opened the campaign.

B. S. Jackson is in Albuquerque spending a few days with his wife and son, Lester. Mrs. Jackson is spending the winter there so that Lester can attend the school.

Mr. Yeager joined several of his Clovis friends in a big bear and deer hunt, leaving Willard on the morning of the 23rd. They have quite a trip planned and expect to return with lots of game and also adventures to recount to their friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Biggs went to La Gran Quivira on a hunt, taking a boy with them. After arriving and pitching their tent, they left the boy in camp, while they went to hunt water for the horses. They lost their way, and failing to return to camp, the boy became frightened, thinking they had either been devoured by wild beasts or had fallen into one of the numerous old wells in that vicinity. The boy struck out for Willard and notified their friends

SURPRISED AT VALLEY PRODUCTS

A special train carrying W. S. Hopewell, vice president, C. C. Murray, receiver and H. A. Coomer, general manager of the New Mexico Central, went south yesterday morning on a tour of inspection of the road. They found the depot as spick and span as a new silver dollar, and things quite slip-shape here.

On their return during the evening, Agent Kennedy had arranged a display of some of the valley products in the depot window, including large table beets, immense sugar beets, mammoth pumpkin, a variety of corn and maize, which brought forth words of highest commendation from the officials.

But not dead Beets

J. M. Milbourn brought in to the News on Tuesday two of the largest red table beets we have ever seen. One of them is 23 inches in circumference and weighs eight and a half pounds. If we can find a pot large enough in which to cook it, we will live on beets awhile, or rather on beet. Mr. Hightower brought in two sugar beets which weighs twenty-two pounds. He says he has been trying to plow them out, but has not succeeded very well. He plows a furrow along both sides of the row, and must then use a grubbing hoe and dig, as if removing stumps of trees. Farming in the Estancia Valley is not all fun after all.

Earl Bright, who has been spending the past several months in Oklahoma, returned to the valley yesterday. Like the bad dollar, they all come back.

J. M. Wiggins, who has spent some time in the valley recently, will leave for Ardmore, Oklahoma, where he will spend the winter months. The News will keep him posted on affairs in the valley.

that the babes had become lost in the woods, who at once started to find them. Arriving at the camp they found the babes sitting around the camp fire, roasting game and telling stories.
